Four-county effort being made to attract tourists to area

by Marvin McIlwain
Editor

Coffee County and its towns and cities have joined forces with three other counties in an effort to attract tourists and new residents to the area.

A group known as "The Wiregrass Area Economic Development Group" is composed of representatives from cities, towns and county governments in Coffee, Covington, Dale and Geneva counties.

In a press conference called last week by the group, an impressive color brochure was unveiled. Titled "Sample Southern Hospitality," the brochure contained pictures and information about 11 towns and cities located in the four-county area.

Dan Presley, who serves as chairman of the group, said, "This is an historic occasion.

"Four counties, which have almost nothing in common but being neighbors, have worked together to produce an economic plan which will not only benefit each individual county, but will also benefit the entire area."

The group was organized about three-and-a-half years ago in December of 1989 and began working on a plan to promote tourism and develop the area's economic base.

Attending the meetings were mayors, councilmen, county commissioners, Chamber of Commerce representatives, Alabama Electric Cooperative people, Alabama Power Company people, County Extension agents, economic development committees, Southeast Alabama Regional Planning representatives and others. This was the first time a group from this large an area had come together for the purpose of discussing economic development.

The group realized that these four counties were not a designated spot for tourists and that none of the four counties had a real dynamic attraction for tourists, it was decided that they could possibly pool their resources and develop a package in which tourists might be interested.

A $3,000 grant was applied for, and received, by the group from the Alabama Bureau of Travel and Tourism to develop and print a brochure listing the tourists attractions in the four-county area. Matching funds for the grant were supplied by the counties, cities, towns and some companies within the area.

Pictures and text for the brochure were submitted by the cities and

Chamber of Commerce from the four counties. A team made up of Wilson Lee, Auburn University Extension Economist; Tom Chestnut, Auburn University Extension Tourism Specialist; Ann Deal, formerly with ADECA (Alabama Department of Economic and Community Affairs); and Nancy Meen, a member of the Southeast Alabama Development Commission, worked together to lay out the brochure.

Some of the attractions and events featured in the full-color brochure are: Coffee County's historic courthouse in Elba, the world famous Boll Weevil Monument in Enterprise, the Army Aviation Museum at Ft. Rucker, the Rattlesnake Rodeo in Opp, the Domino Tournament in Andalusia and many, many more.

There were 35,000 copies of the brochure printed and they will be distributed to the cities and towns in the four-county area. Each will receive approximately 2,000 to be sent out to people requesting information about the area.

The Alabama Bureau of Travel and Tourism will receive 25% (about 8,750) of the brochures to be passed out in the state's welcome centers and rest areas.

Last year, 1992, Alabama's tourism revenues reached $3.6 billion dollars. Southeast Alabama received the least amount of these dollars.

The state lodging tax (one method of measuring tourist impact) for the four-county region for 1992 was Coffee County - $43,880.21; Covington County - $50,089.50; Dale County - $127,832.44; and Geneva County - $1,568.11.

The group feels that if tourists can be attracted to the area, they will not only contribute to the area's economy while visiting, but they may eventually come here to live when they retire.

NEW SIGN ERECTED... encouraging travelers headed to the beaches to go through Elba. The sign is located at the intersection of AL Highway 87 and AL Highway 167 just south of Spring Hill. This is part of the effort to encourage tourist to visit our area. Elba's Chamber of Commerce had the sign painted and erected.

Century Glove Inc., looking at Elba for possible location of new facility

Elba Mayor Ricky Haywood said this week that there is a strong probability a new sewing plant will be opening in Elba within the next month.

Century Glove Inc., makers of heavy duty work gloves, will be holding job interviews in Elba on June 9 and 10, according to an advertisement placed in this week's Elba Clipper.

Mrs. Margot Modlin, of Century Glove, in a telephone interview Tuesday, said the 79 year old firm operates a plant on Sand Mountain in North Alabama and another in Georgia. She said the Elba plant will begin with a small work force and increase employment as the facility becomes more established and the workers fully productive. She explained the firm maintains a "paid back relationship" with their workers, believing a satisfied employee is a better employee, turning out higher quality work.

Haywood explained that the firm was recommended to Elba by the Alabama Development Office (ADO) and was attracted by the quality of the work force and a reputation for dedicated employees.

The mayor said the firm would start in temporary quarters. He was hopeful they might be interested in moving into one of the old school buildings after a few months.

He explained that the firm would begin making work gloves in Elba, however long range plans include producing other items such as a heavy duty apron.

The employment applications will be taken in the vocational building of the new Elba High School as indicated in the display ad on page 10.

Referendum is still on for property tax increase to construct new courthouse

by Marvin McIlwain
Editor

In last Sunday's Dothan Eagle, an article from the Associated Press reported that a bill allowing Coffee County to vote on the raising of property taxes was not signed by Gov. Jim Folsom. This is and is not true.

The Governor did not sign the Senate bill allowing a referendum on the raising of property taxes for the purpose of constructing a new Enterprise Courthouse. This constituted a pocket veto of the bill by Gov. Folsom.

However, an identical bill which was introduced by State Representative Jimmy Holley into the Legislature was passed by the House and signed by the Governor.

The bills were introduced in this manner by State Senator E. C. "Crum" Foshee and Rep. Holley to insure that at least one of the bills would pass. When the measure was introduced, there were only five legislative days left in which to get the measure passed.

During the last Coffee Commission meeting on Monday, May 24, a call was received from Montgomery informing the commissioners that the bill passed by the House had been signed by Governor Folsom.

An attempt was made by Chairman Robert Stephens to set a date for the referendum to be held, but the measure failed to pass. At this time, no date has been set for the vote to be held.

According to Bob Campbell, the engineer in charge of the project, this is part of an on-going program by the State of Alabama Highway Department to check all bridges in the state and ensure that they are safe for today's loads. The actual stress test is scheduled to take place on June 9, 1993.

BRAINSTORMS

With Ferrin Cox

President Clinton is trying to "out Reagan" former President Reagan and a couple of other Republican presidents with his hiring of David Gergen, editor of U.S. News and World Report. Gergen worked for three Republican presidents and is now "counselor to the president" and in charge of communications and press relations for a Democratic administration. They say his job is to improve the battered public image of Bill Clinton... but the effort may be to little, to late.

In a Sunday newspaper we read an impressive article dealing with the problems of Bosnia. The well informed and knowledgeable writer even got this country boy thinking. She quoted something many of us have heard and repeated: "He who does not know history is doomed to repeat it." Well this person, who has traveled extensively in that area, noted "They know their history and have kept that hate alive." The United States needs to keep this in mind before we go bouncing over there to sacrifice our smartest and healthiest young men and women. We could go with the best intentions but only get a generation of Americans killed, without removing any of the hate... unless we just kill them all. But then that would be what we were trying to stop!

However, there was time for a beauty contest there recently. In Sarajevo, Bosnia 13 teenage girls entered the contest, but were more concerned with staying alive than winning a beauty contest. The group unraveled a banner which read, "Don't let them kill us." When interviewed, the 17 year old winner reportedly said, "I have no plans because I may not be alive tomorrow." It is terrible for the good people of a nation to have such outlooks on life, but remember their friends, neighbors and relatives are the ones who are trying to kill each other.

There was a some boom in Elba last Friday afternoon. A lot of people ran outside to see what was happening. However, most were unscared. As far as has been reported, the only damage was one plate glass window which was broken in downtown Elba.

There was very little violence in Miami during the past weekend following the acquittal of the police officer who killed a black motorcyclist in 1989. At that time there were three days of racial rioting. Very visible police and militarized National Guard troops have been instrumental in keeping things from getting out of hand in Miami during the past few days. However, it could flare up at any time and we hope government officials understand that.

Weather experts are warning coastal residents to be aware that 1992's Hurricane Andrew (and Hugo in 1989) wasn't a real hurricane. They say the 44 million people living in coastal areas of the South could be in for real trouble in a Class 5 storm (over 155 mph winds). Hurricane Camille was classified a bad Class 5 storm when it hit Mississippi and Louisiana in 1969, but we haven't had one with wind that strong since we reopened in 1969. 1969 storm, buildings along the coast of Mississippi which had stood through many, many storms were destroyed... killing people who were riding out the storm in those "safe places."

Pentagon Worries About Clinton Military Policies

Is the Administration finally realizing what the rest of America may soon for the last five months? Are the top policy makers at the Pentagon coming to grips with the disastrous effects of reckless and arbitrary draw downs and morale crushing social policies? News from the Department of Defense last week makes one pause and wonder.

It was reported by The Washington Post last Thursday that Defense Secretary Les Aspin has become concerned about "increasing and anecdotal evidence of softness" in the U.S. military's readiness to fight.

In fact, he was so worried about the status of our fighting men and women that he has called for the formation of a "Task Force on Readiness."

In a letter he sent me dated May 20, Aspin said the "Defense Science Board will form a 'Readiness Early Warning System' to insure that our forces do not become 'hollow' and where deficiencies may begin to emerge, to suggest corrective actions."

The Task Force which is comprised of eight retired generals and admirals will meet quarterly and file their first report by January 31, 1994.

According to The Washington Post, the formation of the Task Force may reflect growing concerns among senior officials that fighting readiness will be harmed by budget cuts and open homosexuals in uniform.

Such news comes as no surprise to millions of Americans who have grown uneasy over apparent hasty and ill-considered Clinton Administration defense policies.

For example, when Bill Clinton was running for President he called for $60 billion in additional defense cuts over the next four years. Now that he is in office he wants to more than double that amount to $127 billion.

Secretary of Defense Aspin himself conceded that there was no real basis for the higher $127 billion figure. It just seemed that Clinton pulled it out of thin air to make his deficit reduction package look good. What's more, he has decided to speed up former President Bush's ambitious military strength draw down by three years and add it to cuts of 200,000 uniformed personnel.

While military cuts are inevitable if we are to ever regain the out-of-control Federal budget deficit, the way we make these cuts is critical. It is interesting that Secretary Aspin should use the word "hollow" in his memo last week. This is the same term that was coined during the Jimmy Carter years when the U.S. Military suffered rampant neglect and demoralization. The results of the "hollow" military for the late 1970's are obvious and we don't want to repeat them.

Deep cuts in the military budget without careful forethought and threats to lift the military ban on homosexuals certainly show that the President hasn't learned much from the past.

It will be interesting to see what recommendations Secretary Aspin's Task Force on Readiness makes in a year's time, and what executive order the President issues in June to lift the ban on homosexuals in the military.

Education in Elba should be Everyone's Concern

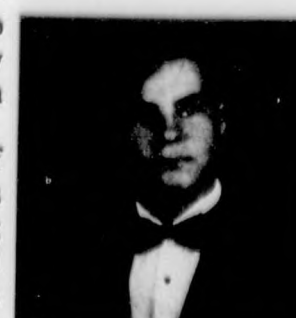

by Joe Jacobs
Valedictorian - 1993
Elba High School

Having been enrolled in the Elba City School system for my entire elementary and high school education, I have been among many changes within the system. From attending classes in tents and trailers to attending classes in one of the best facilities anywhere, I, along with the rest of the student population, have experienced a multitude of extremes. One aspect that has remained constant, however, has been that students and teachers alike have felt that the Elba City Schools are special. Amidst the growing number of social problems that have found even Elba, much must be done, though, to keep the Elba City School system "special."

Regardless of what problems are now facing the schools, all can be overcome if the community gets involved with its children's education. One can wrestle with the dilemmas of drugs, drinking, failing grades, etc. all day, but until a child gains self-esteem, these problems will never be solved.

Two many times people pay attention to the symptoms rather than the cause. In order for the Elba City School system to remain a success, the community must support all students and make them feel worthy of its time and concern.

Great efforts must be made to develop the talents and abilities of all students. Elba has always prided itself with having a well-rounded school. Much credit goes to the dedication and discipline of those students through the years who have given it such a reputation. But they are still human. Lack of support and concern, after a while, does take its toll on a student's morale. All activities at school must be viewed as equally important. Likewise, they must all be supported and yet, that includes financial support. In no way does that imply that one activity be dragged down to a level with the others. What would that accomplish? Rather all activities should be brought up to the same level. If every child is made to feel important, self-esteem will increase and conditions at school will improve.

The Elba City School system has a great history. Many feats have been accomplished in academics, athletics, and the arts. In order to ensure future accomplishments, the community must get involved, more so than ever before. There are so many distractions and hazards for students out there today that everyone must take an active role to keep them on the right track. The education of Elba's young people must become a community affair.

PASTOR'S CORNER

By Martin Gray
Music & Youth Director
Elba First Baptist Church

You may find these words more editorial than devotional. However, as we look toward the graduation of our seniors this Friday evening, I believe it is incumbent upon us to reflect on the role we play as a community in the lives of our young people.

As I sat Sunday evening at Baccalaureate Service and peered into the faces of Elba's finest and brightest, I thought of their future. It is bright and hopeful. Elba will be honored by this group time and time again as they list their hometown on what will be doubtless impressive resumes of accomplishment. We are their home. We are their heritage. We are home.

These thoughts swell us with pride, yet they also hang heavy with responsibility. That mysterious part of our past that we call our heritage plays a significant part in who we are and how we respond to life's questions. Some parts of our heritage give us wings to soar like eagles. Other parts hang around our neck like an albatross weighing us down. Many things make up our heritage - family, community, spiritual identity, and the list goes on and on.

As we glow with pride for the Class of '93, may we also examine our contribution to their heritage. Have we equipped them with wings or an albatross? Jesus made rather caustic remarks to the religious leaders of His day about the albatross they attempted to hang around the necks of their followers. On the other hand, He hailed those who gave encouragement and support to His people. May God always find us faithful in fulfilling our Christian role. After all, they are our heritage too!

Young At Heart Enjoys Bar-B-Q Outing

On North Troy Highway, on the hilltop, is a special home that a lot of people like to visit. It's the home of Erlene Poole, and son, James Ross. This mother and son had extended an invitation to the club members of the Young At Heart of the First Baptist Church for a barbecue rib supper.

The invitation was accepted by a large group of cheerful guests who braved the lazy drizzle of the afternoon summer's shower. Each armed with a lawn chair, umbrella, and a favorite covered dish.

Soon, the spacious picnic entertainment area was filled to the brim with members and special guests. The pleasing and distinct aroma from the barbecue cooked, permeated the night air, stimulating the sense of smell-creating wonderful appetizers.

Of course, this savory and smoky condition was the art of Mary Gray, the club's sponsor. His work never requires any special identification or never needs tagging-for his label is always superior! So thanks, Mart!

The Pooles too, were right in assisting. They had the tables and other conveniences neatly arranged.

All of the guests were comfortably seated around the tables in the area. J. R. obliged with lay trays for eating and later for Bingo. Erlene extended a hearty welcome, following with a prayer of thanksgiving.

Mart announced "Come and get it!" Instantly the group forgot all mannerisms, the conversations dwindled and the consumption of tasty vittles lasted for an extended time.

J. R. presided over the Bingo participation. The lucky ones received special treats of jelly preserves, pickles, and, as prizes.

The most pleasant surprise was freezers of homemade ice cream that were stacked back in the storage room. Oh, how tasty!

The Pooles and the Grays proved that they were the perfect and thoughtful hosts for a typical outing. The club members were more than grateful for the evening of food, fun, and frolic.

by Joey Bozeman

The annual honors day was recently held in the EHS auditorium. The event included the awarding of scholarships, recognition of honor students, and a performance by Elba's district winning FFA Quartet.

The program opened with Mr. Mike Harrelson recognizing several students involved in FFA. Also recognized were five-year agribusiness students Joe Donaldson, Greg Adkins, Jason Burch, Julius Peterson, and Teddy Burks. Two Of Elba's Young Authors Recognized

The fourth annual Young Author's Conference was held Saturday, April 17, 1993, on the campus of Troy State University in Troy, Alabama. Approximately 350 young authors attended this year's conference.

A Young Author's Conference is intended to provide language enrichment opportunities, give recognition to young authors in grades 1-12, and to celebrate and encourage children to continue in their enthusiasm for writing and reading. The children in attendance were able to hear and speak with a published author, an illustrator and also attended sessions in which they could write and share their writings with others.

Natalie Habbitt, author and illustrator from Providence, RI and Chris Conover, author and illustrator from Montana presented valuable information to the students. They also took time to answer questions and autograph books.

In March, children were encouraged to send in entries to be in competition for the Chancellor's Writing Award. The entries were to be judged by a panel in the following categories: best poetry in each grade level; best short story in each grade level; and best illustration in each grade level.

There were over two hundred applicants who sent in their writings. Bethany Dye, daughter of Dr. Tony and Shirlene Dye of Elba, won the Chancellor's Writing Award for Best Poetry in the fourth grade level.

Conny Cooper, daughter of Rita Marler and Bannie Cooper of Elba, won the Chancellor's Award for Best Poetry and Best Short Story in the fifth grade level.

Connie and Bethany are both students of the Enrichment Resource Program taught by Mrs. Sharon Walker. Both girls received special recognition during the opening session by Troy State University Chancellor Dr. Jack Hawkins.

The two girls were presented a published book signed by one of the visiting authors and an anthology of the award-winning writings. They also received an anthology for their school library.

The Young Author's Conference was sponsored by the Troy State University School of Education, the Southeast Regional Inservice Center, Wiegans Writing Project, Troy State University Department of English, and the Pike County Reading Council.

Elba High Has Outstanding Year

by Lance McCollough

Elba High School has experienced something few schools have ever experienced. It all started on September 8, 1992. On this day the students began school in one of the best facilities in the state. This led to Elba having its most outstanding year.

Throughout the year Elba was recognized starting with football. The football team gained recognition by beating several large schools and capturing the 3A State Football title. After football, the high school...

FFA Landscaping

by Alan Robertson

Another phase in the completion of Elba High School was recently brought to a close. The Elba FFA, under the leadership of sponsor Mike Harrelson, completed their project of landscaping the high school.

The project was started in November. The first phase of the project was cutting sod away from April. The project was done before April. The project was completed with four weeks of work during April and May. The project at the high school was brought to a close on Tuesday, May 25.

Harrelson said that the landscaping project, which was funded by the Elba Board of Education, cost just over $2,000. An estimated cost for doing the project by a private company had been considerably higher. The FFA paid half off whole sale cost for all plants and plastic used. All wood chips for the project were donated by the Elba Chip Mill. Estimated cost of the bark bought commercially would have been between $800 and $1,000.

Though the FFA has completed their project at the high school, their job is not completed. The FFA plans to continue the landscaping work by doing the elementary campus, the football stadium, the area around the superintendent's office, and the entrance to the entire campus. The FFA will also be responsible for the maintenance of the beds in the years to come.

All this work does have a purpose other than the beautification of the campus. The FFA is going to submit this project as an entry in the BOAC (Building Our American Communities), a National FFA contest. We would like to say thank you to the FFA for a job well done and wish them luck in the contest.

Welding Class - A Job Well Done

The Welding students at Elba High School have just recently completed a tremendous challenge. They took on the challenge by completely reworking an 8' x 16' trailer and building a 6' x 12' trailer from the ground up. This challenge tested the students skills in blueprint reading, oxy-acetylene cutting and fitting, various types of out of position welding methods. The welding processes used were the GMAW (Mig) and the SMAW (Stick). Congratulations men, on a job well done.

6TH GRADE FIELD TRIP... Friday, May 21, 1993, the sixth grade class from Elba Elementary School departed for the traditional field trip to the Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville, AL. This year, a total of 67 students, teachers, and bus drivers made the trip. The group was escorted by Elba Police Officers Dean Blair and Donnie Parris in conjunction with the D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) Program. While at the Space & Rocket center, the students experienced a new and exciting film, "SPEED" in the SpaceDome Theatre. They also had the opportunity to sample some of the activities of SPACE CAMP through the S.C.A.T. tour. The annual trip once again proved successful and the chaperones offered nothing but praise for the behavior of the students. The group is pictured above as they prepare to board the buses for their trip to Huntsville.

Bradley Wins National Award In Band

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Carrie Bradley has been named a United States National Award winner in Band. This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10% of all American high school students. Carrie, who attends Elba High School, was nominated for this National Award by Mr. Mike Bright, a band teacher at the school. Carrie's band appears in the United States Achievement Academy's Official Yearbook, published nationally. Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

Carrie is the daughter of Ralph and Sam Bradley. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Bradley of Kinston, AL and Mr. and Mrs. Zealon Smith of Elba, AL.

School gets out this week and that means that another year has come and gone for Daddy's little girls. Melissa will be in the fifth grade next year, which will put her only two years away from moving over to the high school, while Melanie will be in her final year at daycare, putting her only one year away from school. They may be growing up, but they'll always be Daddy's little girls!

ELBA BASEBALLERS ATTEND CAMP & SERIES

Twelve youngsters from Elba were among those in attendance last week at the American Baseball Coaches Association "Camp of Champions" clinic at Montgomery.

The clinic was free to all baseball players ages six through sixteen, and the players were broken down into groups according to age, with a three year age difference in each group. The players heard an enrichment speech from former Pittsburgh Pirate Al Oliver, then got instructions from college players and coaches on hitting, bunting and fielding. The players were also divided up by position for the fielding drills, and the individual attention was outstanding.

After the clinic, the players received free tickets to the opening game of the Division 2 World Series and got a chance to watch the college players in action. It was a great day for the players, and next year maybe even more players from all the Elba baseball leagues will get a chance to attend.

ELBA TO HOST WOMEN'S SOFTBALL TOURNAMENTS

The ASA district softball tournaments are just around the corner and it has been announced that Elba will be the site for the women's district tournaments in classes B, C and D. There aren't as many women's teams in the district as there once was, and cities like Elba, Opp, Andalusia and Enterprise don't even have leagues anymore. However, there are leagues in places like Troy, Ozark and Dothan, and it is estimated that between 15-25 teams will be in town on June 25-26 to compete.

Elba's Hawkins-Williams Park is considered to have one of the finest softball facilities in the state, and the women's district tournaments will give the city another chance to show off its fine recreational facilities.

TROY STATE HAS MADE FINAL YEAR A SPECIAL ONE

Troy State University made the decision a number of years ago to make the jump from Division 2 to Division IAA in all athletics, and this is the final year that the Trojans will compete in the Division 2 ranks. The other teams in the nation have to be glad!

Troy State's football team was among the nation's best and could have won the national title if it had been eligible, while the basketball team finished second in the nation and the baseball team is at the Division 2 World Series trying to bring home yet another baseball title.

It may take a while for Troy State to dominate in Division IAA; however, there was never any doubt that in Division 2 the Trojans were hard to beat, in any sport.

ELBA'S STOUDEMIRE MAKING "BIG" NOISE AT TSU

Troy State concluded its spring drills a couple of weeks ago and one player making a lot of noise was former Elba Tiger standout Jackie Stoudemire. Stoudemire, a two-way starter on the 1989 state championship team at Elba, earned a scholarship last season at tight-end, but in the spring was named to defensive end. He bulked up to over 250 pounds and dominated offensive linemen in drills. Jackie kept on getting bigger and stronger, and by the time drills ended he was closer to 270 and was listed as a possible starter at noseguard.

If Jackie can keep getting stronger, and remains as dedicated as he now is to football, he may one day find himself in the NFL.

HOUSE CLEANING CONTINUES AT KINSTON

We will be able to call them the "new look Bulldogs" when the football and basketball teams at Kinston take to the field and court next season.

The house cleaning continued last week at Kinston when Coach Mark Coale was terminated after three years at the Bulldog helm. Kinston's football program has struggled since it was started back many years ago, and while Coach Coale didn't exactly pile up the wins, he did field competitive teams and seemed to do a good job. I had heard some runnings about the need for a new coach, and wasn't surprised with the announcement, but I hope the supporters in Kinston will realize that a change doesn't always bring about instant results and that any coach at a small school is strong to encounter problems. No matter who takes over, it will take more than a year or two to turn the Bulldog program into a winning one.

When Jay Driver was named the new basketball coach at Kinston, a lot of people wondered out loud why the school officials that had been looking for "an experienced coach with experience in both football and basketball" had given the job to a coach just out of college. Well, while the new coach certainly doesn't fit the mold that the school officials had been hoping for, he does come from a basketball background and will without a doubt bring a new excitement to the program. The name "Driver" is well known in basketball circles and the hunch here is that the folks down in Kinston are hoping that the youngest of the clan will be the best. Time will tell, but I'd be surprised if the new cage coach doesn't field a winner in a hurry.
